Group against teachers' union joins in the fray

Counterprotesters to oppose teachers

Philly. With more teachers' union protests planned for today, an anti-union group is joining the mix.

A guerrilla marketing agency paid by a conservative think tank is hiring locals to participate in what a job listing described as a "counterprotest" to the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers' rally at the School District of Philadelphia today.

But the Commonwealth Foundation (CF), a Harrisburg-based free-market advocacy group, said they are openly starting a campaign called "PFT Fails" and not creating an "Astroturf" or fake grassroots group.

"We hired 12 people to come down to hold banners for us and pass out fliers. ... We in no way are hiring people to misrepresent or pretend they're someone else," said CF spokeswoman Cindy Hamill. "We wanted to bring information to the rally about how the PFT has been failing teachers and students and how they're standing in the way of teachers and students."

A Facebook ad seeking "PFT Fails" offered $40 to $120 for protest participants and said they would be provided with signs upon arrival.

The Philadelphia Federation of Teachers (PFT) will hold a "Turn up for the Truth" rally at 4 p.m. today outside the School District offices in response to the School Reform Commission's cancellation of teachers' contracts, it announced last Monday. Protests have taken place almost every day since that cancellation was announced.

"It's interesting that their cause is so just they have to pay people to come spread their message," said PFT spokesman George Jackson in response to the Commonwealth Foundation's plans. "We'll have thousands of people coming out tomorrow for free because they want to hear the truth."

Visit Metro.us for more about CF's mission in Philadelphia.

Dueling views

The School Reform Commission canceled contracts on Oct. 6. for 11,500 PFT members.

- Previously teachers contributed nothing to their health care. Now they must pay up to 13 percent. The PFT has vowed to sue.

Sentencing. Man who killed baby, grandmother gets death penalty

An Indian national convicted of killing a 10-month-old girl and her grandmother in a kidnapping for ransom gone awry has been sentenced to death in Pennsylvania.

The Montgomery County jury deliberated for about four hours and decided to hand down the death penalty on Tuesday night after convicting Raghunandan Yandamuri, 28, of two counts of first-degree murder.

Prosecutors say Yandamuri, who worked in the Philadelphia suburbs, killed the baby, Saanvi Venna, and her grandmother Satyavathi Venna, 61, in October 2012 as part of a kidnapping scheme to cover gambling losses at a nearby casino.

An appeal is expected. Pennsylvania last executed an inmate in 1999.

Cops search for suspect in barbershop shooting

After releasing surveillance video of a shooting, police are on the lookout for the man who allegedly shot a Northeast barber after paying for his haircut, police said.

The 33-year-old owner of Castor's Finest Barbershop told police that on Monday night the unidentified man walked into the shop, on the 7000 block of Castor Avenue, and asked for a haircut. The man then sat in the chair and handed the owner $13. After wrapping the customer in an apron, the owner turned to grab a razor. When he turned around the customer stood, pulled out a handgun and fired.

The owner was hit in the left thigh, right shoulder and chest. A second man entered and helped clean up the bullet cases before the two fled. METRO

Mayfair

Dog stolen outside store

Police released descriptions Wednesday of the two women suspected of stealing a dog from outside a Mayfair store.

The dog's owner tied her pug's leash to a gate outside a store on the 6400 block of Frankford Avenue and went inside. When she returned, the dog was gone.

Police described the alleged dognappers as two white women with dark hair and who looked to be between the ages of 20 and 30.

Center City. Dilworth Park ice skating rink to open in November

Ice skaters in Dilworth Park on Wednesday are ready for the rink to open. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER, METRO

The promise of a completed Dilworth Park is finally coming to fruition.

The lawn, the second public transit entrance, a new seating area and a crosswalk to The Ritz, which weren't ready at the time of the grand opening on Sept. 4, will be open to the public starting late next week, officials announced Wednesday.

On Oct. 28, the fountain will be turned off for the season.

"We've got to drain and winterize our water system," said Paul Levy, head of the Center City District. "And then we will begin to install the platform over the fountain and install the rink."

The "Rothman Institute Ice Rink," which will sit on top of the fountain and hold several hundred skaters, will open on Nov. 14, he said.

"We will bring in our own chillers, our own special Dilworth Zamboni machine, a warming tent and skate rental area," Levy said.

The rink will be open seven days a week until Feb. 22 of next year.

An elevator, which takes residents to the platforms below, has not yet opened.

The park, which was slated to open in the spring, met delays due to last winter's heavy snowfalls and unexpected construction obstacles.

Philadelphia International becomes a part of history

Avenue of the Arts. The famed record label took down its sign, making way for demolition in 2015.

The Philadelphia International Records building, above, will be demolished to make way for a new luxury hotel and condos, to the right. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER, METRO

The former headquarters of Philadelphia International Records, the label which under the leadership of Kenny Gamble and Leon Huff created the "Philadelphia Sound" exemplified by artists such as Harold Melvin & the Blue Notes and The O'Jays, will soon only exist in memory.

"It was bittersweet. It was tough," said Kenny's nephew Chuck Gamble about seeing the Philadelphia International sign taken down Wednesday after 40 years.

"It was one of the very first Afro-American institutions along the Avenue of the Arts," he said. "It has a major place in American history and music. Very many people looked to that location as an institution."

The former record label's building at Broad and Spruce streets, which was heavily damaged due to a 2010 arson, will soon be razed to make way for the SLS International Development by Dranoff Properties.

That sale was announced late last year.

Gamble said that ideally, the relics and memorabilia of the record label will eventually be housed in their own, Philadelphia-specific music museum, like the Motown Museum in Detroit or the Memphis Rock 'n' Soul Museum.

"My interest is to one day build a museum here in the city," Gamble said.

That memorabilia includes platinum and gold records, two recording boards, five pianos including Gamble and Huff's original piano that they played songs on including "Love Train," and Gamble's handmade desk and chair.

Earlier this year, Sony purchased the entire back catalog of all Philadelphia International Records recordings and has begun reissuing their music.

Meanwhile, an autobiography of Gamble and Huff will be published, with a movie to follow.

Camden to get first new grocery store in decades

A PriceRite opened in Camden Tuesday, the first new grocery store to open in the city since the 1960s, signifying what officials believe will be the revitalization of Camden, reports say.

The last grocery store in the crime-ridden city — a Pathmark — closed a year ago.

A new ShopRite is also scheduled to open in Camden in 2016.

A third of Camden residents live more than a mile from a grocery store or supermarket, a situation known as a "food desert."

Would-be robbers, lawmakers trade gunfire at capital

Harrisburg. A Scranton Democrat shot at two men who demanded his and another lawmaker's wallets.

Flynn and Bizzarro fought off would-be muggers. / PROVIDED

A Pennsylvania legislator exchanged gunfire with a would-be robber who tried to mug him and another lawmaker near the statehouse, and four teenagers were arrested on Wednesday and charged with attempted homicide and other offenses.

Representative Marty Flynn, a Democrat from Scranton, fired two shots after the robber pointed his pistol at him and then at Representative Ryan Bizzarro, a Democrat from Erie, and demanded their wallets in the incident at about 11 p.m. on Tuesday, the House Democratic Caucus said in a statement on Wednesday.

The robber fired one shot, which prompted the return fire from Flynn, a former prison guard and mixed martial arts fighter, the caucus said.

No one is believed to have been injured, police said. The gunfire broke out as the lawmakers returned from a late dinner at Second Street Restaurant to the apartment they share, not far from the statehouse.

City police arrested three teenagers a few blocks from the crime scene, and a fourth was arrested at home, police said.

Second nurse with Ebola had slight fever on plane

Spread. Although the risk for other passengers was low, the CDC said the nurse should not have been traveling.

A second Texas nurse who contracted Ebola flew on a commercial flight from Ohio to Texas with a slight temperature the day before she was diagnosed, health officials said on Wednesday, raising new concerns about U.S. efforts to control the disease.

Chances that other passengers on the plane were infected were very low, but the nurse should not have been traveling on the flight, U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention director Dr. Thomas Frieden told reporters.

The woman, Amber Vinson, 29, was isolated immediately after reporting a fever on Tuesday, Texas Department of State Health Services officials said. She had treated Liberian patient Thomas Eric Duncan, who died of Ebola on Oct. 8 and was the first patient diagnosed with the virus in the United States.

Vinson, a worker at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, had taken a Frontier Airlines flight from Cleveland, Ohio to Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport on Monday, officials said.

In Washington, President Barack Obama said the likelihood of a widespread Ebola outbreak was "very, very low." But he pledged a more aggressive response to U.S. Ebola cases from federal officials and to do everything possible to ensure no more health care workers are infected.

Obama met with Cabinet officials to discuss the government's response to the Ebola situation after canceling a planned political trip to New Jersey and Connecticut.

Government officials said Vinson was being transferred to Emory University Hospital in Atlanta, which has successfully treated two people who contracted the disease in West Africa and were flown back to the U.S. REUTERS

Obama says health response teams readied

President Barack Obama said the government is forming rapid response teams of health specialists who can be on-site within 24 hours anywhere a patient is diagnosed with Ebola in the U.S.

As public concern over the spread of Ebola rises following the infection of two nurses in Dallas, Obama said the government is working to ensure that hospitals have proper protocols and training in place to contain the disease.

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention also is reviewing every step taken at the Dallas hospital that treated a Liberian man who has since died of Ebola, to determine what went wrong, he said. BLOOMBERG

Time Warner to launch HBO streaming service

Strategy. It could be a further catalyst spurring people to dump their cable subscriptions.

Time Warner Inc.'s HBO will launch a stand-alone online streaming service next year to make hit shows such as "Game of Thrones" available to people who do not subscribe to cable television.

The move to take HBO "over-the-top" — media jargon that means consumers can watch the channel with only a broadband connection — is a significant milestone for a channel long dependent on cable distributors.

HBO's chief executive, Richard Plepler, announced the move during an investor day on Wednesday where Time Warner's other top executives laid out plans to boost the company's growth.

Plepler cited that 10 million homes in the United States are broadband-only, without cable subscriptions. Half of those homes subscribe to streaming video services. "These consumers have no access to HBO. It's a large opportunity that should not be untapped," he said.

Netflix Inc. shares were down 3.1 percent at $435.28 after the announcement.

"In 2015 we will go beyond the wall and launch a stand-alone, over-the-top service with the potential to produce hundreds of millions in revenue," Plepler said.

Plepler did not disclose further details about the forthcoming service, including the price. HBO currently allows cable subscribers to access its content on mobile devices through an app known as HBO Go. REUTERS

Lawsuit. GM sued for $10 billion over losses on 27 million cars

General Motors Co. was hit with its biggest lawsuit so far over serial recalls, brought on behalf of drivers of 27 million vehicles seeking more than $10 billion in compensation for fallen car prices.

The would-be class action against GM aims to represent everyone who bought or leased a recalled car from July 2009 to July 2014 and still owns it, or who sold it after mid-February when the recalls started, or who had an accident that destroyed it after that date.

"New GM repeatedly proclaimed that it was a company committed to innovation, safety, and maintaining a strong brand," according to the filing. "The value of all GM-branded vehicles has diminished as a result of the widespread publication of those defects and New GM's corporate culture of ignoring and concealing safety defects."

Hundreds of individual car-price complaints against GM were combined in two separate class actions, according to a Web post by one of the lawyers against GM.

GM spurred the price drops by hiding at least 60 serious defects in around 27 million vehicles sold in the U.S., according to the complaint filed Tuesday in federal court in Manhattan against "New GM."

Pump prices fall to lowest since 2011 amid oil slump

U.S. drivers are reaping the benefit of the strong global crude production and weak demand that are causing oil prices to drop more than a quarter since June. / GETTY IMAGES

Drop. Gasoline prices have fallen more than 50 cents this year since peaking at $3.696 in April.

Regular gasoline in the U.S. fell to the lowest level in more than three-and-a-half years as shale oil production and weak global demand spurred a four-month slump in oil prices.

U.S. drivers are reaping the benefit of strong global crude production and weak demand causing oil prices to drop more than a quarter since June.

"That's like somebody putting dollars right in your pocket," said David Hackett, president of Stillwater Associates, an energy consulting firm in Irvine, California. "That sounds like Christmas presents, going out to dinner, being able to do something."

Global oil consumption will increase by about 650,000 barrels a day this year, the Paris-based International Energy Agency said in a monthly report on Tuesday. That's a reduction of 250,000 from its prior estimate. The International Monetary Fund said on Oct. 7 that the global economy will expand by 3.8 percent in 2015, down from a July projection of 4 percent.

Average retail price

The average retail price fell 0.9 cents a gallon to $3.177, Heathrow, Florida-based motoring group AAA said on its website Wednesday. That's the lowest level since February 2011, when the uprising started against Muammar Gaddafi that disrupted oil supplies from OPEC member Libya.

Sentencing awaits. Steenkamp cousin testifies at Pistorius hearing

A cousin of Reeva Steenkamp broke down at the sentencing hearing of Oscar Pistorius as she recounted hearing on her car radio that the Olympic athlete had killed his girlfriend.

Proceedings at the High Court in Pretoria, South Africa's capital, were adjourned briefly before Kim Martin resumed describing how she tried to call Steenkamp before realizing that she was the person Pistorius had shot dead.

Martin was the first witness called by prosecutor Gerrie Nel at the hearing to determine what sentence Pistorius should receive for his conviction of manslaughter for the killing of Steenkamp at his home on Valentine's Day last year. Martin said Steenkamp and Pistorius weren't very affectionate when she had breakfast with them the previous month.

"His phone rang and he got up and left the table to answer the call. And when he walked away, I said to Reeva, 'So cuz, are you happy?'" Martin said. "She had a smile on her face and she pulled her shoulders up like this and she said 'Yes, but we need to talk.'"

Martin said she never forgave herself for not asking Reeva what she meant. She described the Steenkamp family as always short of money. As she testified, Steenkamp's father, Barry, broke down in tears.

Masipa cleared Pistorius of murder charges before convicting him of culpable homicide for killing Steenkamp when he fired four bullets through a bathroom door. Pistorius said he thought Steenkamp was an intruder. REUTERS

Airstrikes intensify as Syria conflict destabilizes Turkey

American-led forces have sharply intensified air strikes this week against Islamic State fighters threatening Kurds on Syria's Turkish border after the jihadists' advance began to destabilize Turkey.

The coalition had conducted 21 attacks on the militants near the Syrian Kurdish town of Kobani on Monday and Tuesday and appeared to have slowed ISIS advances there, the U.S. military said. but the situation remained fluid.

The fight against Islamic State was among the items on the agenda for President Barack Obama's video conference on Wednesday with British, French, German and Italian leaders, the White House said. REUTERS

OMG! Apocalypse survival training app: Fitness meets fantasy

Here's a screenshot of the Apocalypse Survival Training audio fitness app by Adele Kirby. / ADELE KIRBY

Is your workout app lacking in excitement? Here's something that's out-of-this-world. The Apocalypse Survival Training app simulates an alien invasion in the streets of London and gives the runner a mission to save the city by sprinting, ducking and jumping. London-based fitness instructor and app developer Adele Kirby explains why it's important to be "mentally and physically 'apocalypse-ready.'"

Where on Earth did you get the idea for an alien invasion apocalypse fitness app?
I love to exercise and dabble in some fantasy and sci-fi writing, so I wanted to combine those two passions to make fitness more fun. This idea first came to a head two years ago when, at a Discworld fan event, some friends and I were talking about how brilliant working out would be if it were set in the Discworld city of Anhk-Morpork. I couldn't shake off the idea, so I started creating stories where exercise could be convincingly, entertainingly and dramatically set in the real world.

What is the main point of your app?
To take familiar, beloved aspects of popular entertainment and use them to make exercise more enjoyable. By placing a workout inside an action story, we can give it purpose, drama, emotion and an urgency often lacking in traditional exercise methods. The story also allows us to create a hero's journey for the user, challenging them mentally as well as physically.

It's kind of like World of Warcraft-meets-Wii Fit. What kind of quests does your app provide?
The user is dropped in with a group of survivors of an alien invasion of London. Made up mostly of strangers, this initially dysfunctional "team" is given a mission to save the city. The goal of the fitness program is to become mentally and physically 'apocalypse-ready.'

Question

How does it work, technically?

Download the app, watch the intro video, select the first episode, plug in your headphones and go! Apocalypse Survival Training is like a radio play where every episode is a workout, so you run through the episodes in chronological order. The workouts are structured to build up your fitness when played regularly, and the story and character arcs unfold throughout the series.

Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Alec Baldwin is getting into the spirit of the season, Kirstie Alley is feeling vulnerable and Dana Delany is possibly a little intoxicated.

@ABFalecbaldwin: An election is just weeks away. What better time to, once again, critique the lack of common sense and fairness in most US govt policy?

@kirstiealley Oh damn... new cell phone with new Twitter app and no idea how to USE THE BLOCK Feature.

@DanaDelany: Has anyone noticed that Tyler Perry & Frank Langella have similar mouths?

Harry Styles heading in the wrong direction

Harry Styles' friends are worried about him — and with good reason. Styles was recently photographed in the natural habitat of a 20-year-old celebrity on a break from his pop group's arena tour: puking his guts out on the side of an LA freeway the morning after a night out with Lily Allen. You know, that old story. While he's been getting sick, his friends have been worried sick. "He has been worrying everyone for quite some time now," a source tells Radar Online. "Those close to him have urged him to slow down. But he lives by the seam of his pants and thinks that he is invincible. Clearly, he is not." Could this source have meant to say "by the seat of his pants"? I'm not familiar with what living by the "seam" of your pants is, exactly, but hey, language is a fluid beast. Boot and rally, Harry. Boot and rally.

Harry Styles is looking a little bit Wolverine-ish these days, and apparently he's behaving like an animal, too!

Chris Brown weighs in on Ebola — finally!

Oh, Chris Brown. You just can't help yourself, can you? The embattled singer decided to ruminate a bit on the current Ebola crisis, and the results are, well, this: "I don't know … But I think this Ebola epidemic is a form of population control. S— is getting crazy bruh." Indeed, bruh. He did at least follow that up with "Let me shut my black ass up!" To be fair, though, a trip through Brown's Twitter timeline is always a risky endeavor. In what I'm assuming is a response to criticism over his Ebola comments, he tweeted, "I say what I want. If u don't like it.... 'SUCK MY ASS' (little Asian girl voice)" which, to be sure, is absolutely charming and not offensive in the least. And more recently, apropos of nothing but cringe-worthy just because it was Brown writing it, we have: "Ain't nothing like a real supportive woman."

You stay classy, Chris Brown.

Gaga gets engaged

Lady Gaga and her "Chicago Fire" star beau, Taylor Kinney, have reportedly pledged their love to each other or something like that in a private commitment ceremony, according to the Daily Star. The couple reportedly had a commitment ceremony of sorts before family and close friends at New York City restaurant Joan Trattoria recently. "Gaga wanted something visual, a commitment ceremony with the people who matter the most," a source says. Good to see they didn't go full-on Kanye with it and rent out a stadium.

NPH one step closer to a hosting EGOT

It might have seemed inevitable, but it's still news: Two-time Emmy Awards and four-time Tony Awards host Neil Patrick Harris has been tapped for the big show. The "Gone Girl" and "How I Met Your Mother" star will serve as host for the 87th Academy Awards on February 22, 2015, producers Craig Zadan and Neil Meron announced today. Harris has earned four Emmys for his work hosting the Tonys. He has also previously served as host for Spike Video Game Awards.

Selena Gomez is ashamed of you

Kids can be tough enough, but Selena Gomez says she's had to put up with grown-up haters, too. And she's had it! "I get picked on by grown adults all the time," Gomez tells E! News. "It just baffles me. I wish I could just sit them down and say, 'What were you doing at 15? What were you doing at 18? What were you doing at 21?' Because I can guarantee you it's not half of what I've done.'" Maybe the "whatever, loser" card isn't exactly the high road she seems to think it is. But apparently it's working? "Trust me, it's hard. I've had my moments where I've let them get to me, but I refuse to let them win," she says. Now if you'll excuse me, I have to go think about what I was doing at 15. And it ain't pretty.

THE CDC RECOMMENDS ROUTINE VACCINATION OF 11 OR 12 YEAR OLDS AGAINST HPV-RELATED CANCER AND DISEASES.

THE TIME TO PROTECT THEM IS BEFORE EXPOSURE TO THE VIRUS.

There are about 40 types of human papillomavirus (HPV) that may affect an estimated 75% to 80% of males and females in their lifetime. For most, HPV will clear on its own. However, there's no way to predict who will and won't clear the virus. For those who don't clear certain types, HPV could cause cervical, vaginal, and vulvar cancers in females and anal cancer and genital warts in both males and females.

The CDC recommends routine vaccination for boys and girls ages 11 or 12 against HPV-related cancer and diseases.

GARDASIL® [Human Papillomavirus Quadrivalent (Types 6, 11, 16, and 18) Vaccine, Recombinant] is the only HPV vaccine that helps protect against 4 types of HPV. In girls and young women ages 9 to 26, GARDASIL helps protect against 2 types of HPV that cause about 75% of cervical cancer cases, 70% of vaginal cancer cases, and up to 50% of vulvar cancer cases. In males and females ages 9 to 26, GARDASIL helps protect against about 80% of anal cancer cases and about 90% of genital warts cases.

GARDASIL may not fully protect everyone, nor will it protect against diseases caused by other HPV types or against diseases not caused by HPV. GARDASIL does not prevent all types of cervical cancer, so it's important for women to continue routine cervical cancer screenings.

GARDASIL does not treat cancer or genital warts.

GARDASIL is given as 3 injections over 6 months.

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

Anyone who is allergic to the ingredients of GARDASIL, including those severely allergic to yeast, should not receive the vaccine. GARDASIL is not for women who are pregnant.

The side effects include pain, swelling, itching, bruising, and redness at the injection site, headache, fever, nausea, dizziness, vomiting, and fainting. Fainting can happen after getting GARDASIL. Sometimes people who faint can fall and hurt themselves. For this reason, your child's health care professional may ask your child to sit or lie down for 15 minutes after he or she gets GARDASIL. Some people who faint might shake or become stiff. This may require evaluation or treatment by your child's health care professional.

Only a doctor or health care professional can decide if GARDASIL is right for your son or daughter.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Please read the Patient Information on the adjacent page for more detailed information.

Talk to your child's doctor about GARDASIL.

Patient Information about GARDASIL® (pronounced "gard-Ah-sill")

Generic name: [Human Papillomavirus Quadrivalent (Types 6, 11, 16, and 18) Vaccine, Recombinant]

Read this information with care before getting GARDASIL.[1] You (the person getting GARDASIL) will need 3 doses of the vaccine. It is important to read this leaflet when you get each dose. This leaflet does not take the place of talking with your health care provider about GARDASIL.

What is GARDASIL?
GARDASIL is a vaccine (injection/shot) that is used for girls and women 9 through 26 years of age to help protect against the following diseases caused by Human Papillomavirus (HPV):

- Cervical cancer
- Vulvar and vaginal cancers
- Anal cancer
- Genital warts
- Precancerous cervical, vaginal, vulvar, and anal lesions

GARDASIL is used for boys and men 9 through 26 years of age to help protect against the following diseases caused by HPV:

- Anal cancer
- Genital warts
- Precancerous anal lesions
  - The diseases listed above have many causes, and GARDASIL only protects against diseases caused by certain kinds of HPV (called Type 6, Type 11, Type 16, and Type 18). Most of the time, these 4 types of HPV are responsible for the diseases listed above.
  - GARDASIL cannot protect you from a disease that is caused by other types of HPV, other viruses, or bacteria.
  - GARDASIL does not treat HPV infection.
  - You cannot get HPV or any of the above diseases from GARDASIL.

What important information about GARDASIL should I know?

- You should continue to get routine cervical cancer screening.
- GARDASIL may not fully protect everyone who gets the vaccine.
- GARDASIL will not protect against HPV types that you already have.

Who should not get GARDASIL?
You should not get GARDASIL if you have, or have had:

- an allergic reaction after getting a dose of GARDASIL.
- a severe allergic reaction to yeast, amorphous aluminum hydroxyphosphate sulfate, polysorbate 80.

What should I tell my health care provider before getting GARDASIL?
Tell your health care provider if you:

- are pregnant or planning to get pregnant. GARDASIL is not recommended for use in pregnant women.
- have immune problems, like HIV infection, cancer, or you take medicines that affect your immune system.
- have a fever over 100°F (37.8°C).
- had an allergic reaction to another dose of GARDASIL.
- take any medicines, even those you can buy over the counter.

Your health care provider will help decide if you should get the vaccine.

How is GARDASIL given?
GARDASIL is a shot that is usually given in the arm muscle. You will need 3 shots given on the following schedule:

- Dose 1: at a date you and your health care provider choose.
- Dose 2: 2 months after Dose 1.
- Dose 3: 6 months after Dose 1.

Fainting can happen after getting GARDASIL. Sometimes people who faint can fall and hurt themselves. For this reason, your health care provider may ask you to sit or lie down for 15 minutes after you get GARDASIL. Some people who faint might shake or become stiff. This may require evaluation or treatment by your health care provider.

Make sure that you get all 3 doses on time so that you get the best protection. If you miss a dose, talk to your health care provider.

Can other vaccines and medications be given at the same time as GARDASIL?
GARDASIL can be given at the same time as RECOMBIVAX HB®[1] [hepatitis B vaccine (recombinant)] or Menactra [Meningococcal (Groups A, C, Y and W-135) Polysaccharide Diphtheria Toxoid Conjugate Vaccine] and Adacel [Tetanus Toxoid, Reduced Diphtheria Toxoid and Acellular Pertussis Vaccine Adsorbed (Tdap)].

What are the possible side effects of GARDASIL?
The most common side effects with GARDASIL are:

- pain, swelling, itching, bruising, and redness at the injection site
- headache
- fever
- nausea
- dizziness
- vomiting
- fainting

There was no increase in side effects when GARDASIL was given at the same time as RECOMBIVAX HB [hepatitis B vaccine (recombinant)].

There was more injection-site swelling at the injection site for GARDASIL when GARDASIL was given at the same time as Menactra [Meningococcal (Groups A, C, Y and W-135) Polysaccharide Diphtheria Toxoid Conjugate Vaccine] and Adacel [Tetanus Toxoid, Reduced Diphtheria Toxoid and Acellular Pertussis Vaccine Adsorbed (Tdap)].

Tell your health care provider if you have any of the following problems because these may be signs of an allergic reaction:

- difficulty breathing
- wheezing (bronchospasm)
- hives
- rash

Tell your health care provider if you have:

- swollen glands (neck, armpit, or groin)
- joint pain
- unusual tiredness, weakness, or confusion
- chills
- generally feeling unwell
- leg pain
- shortness of breath
- chest pain
- aching muscles
- muscle weakness
- seizure
- bad stomach ache
- bleeding or bruising more easily than normal
- skin infection

Contact your health care provider right away if you get any symptoms that concern you, even several months after getting the vaccine.

For a more complete list of side effects, ask your health care provider.

What are the ingredients in GARDASIL?
The ingredients are proteins of HPV Types 6, 11, 16, and 18, amorphous aluminum hydroxyphosphate sulfate, yeast protein, sodium chloride, L-histidine, polysorbate 80, sodium borate, and water for injection.

This leaflet is a summary of information about GARDASIL. If you would like more information, please talk to your health care provider or visit www.gardasil.com.

‘People Keep Talking’ about Hoodie Allen

Join the party. You first heard about the frat-rap king years ago, but he is only now releasing his first full album.

Hoodie Allen, aka Steven Markowitz, might not be the University of Pennsylvania frat boy he was a few years ago, but he hasn’t outgrown the urge to throw one heck of a rager. “I’m trying to plan a secret party for 200 fans for the album release,” he says. The album, “People Keep Talking,” dropped Tuesday, coming after his self-released EP “All American” and five mixtapes.

His friends Max Schneider and Ed Sheeran are both featured. “Working with Ed was cool because we’ve been friends for a while, but I think there’s a difference between being friends and getting into the studio where you both have your own way of doing things,” Allen says.

“The core of the album is really about believing in what you’re doing and your ability,” he continues. “It’s OK to do things that aren’t traditional and that people might question, as long as you believe you’re doing the right thing.”

That belief has been the theme of Allen’s music career so far. After graduating, he got a job at Google, which he quit in 2011 to pursue music full time.

“At the time, it was something I felt really good about, but I noticed other people around me were a little unsure,” he says.

People might keep talking, but it’s unlikely they’re still expressing uncertainty.

Roommate ruminations

Allen currently lives in New York and his roommate is one of his childhood best friends. “We met when we were 5 years old, playing soccer, and we went to high school together. He doesn’t have anything to do with the music industry at all,” Allen says.

Another one of his close friends is college buddy RJ Ferguson, who coproduced the album as well as “All American” and most of the mixtapes.

Hannibal Buress: Not so serious

HANNIBAL BURESS
GETTY IMAGES

Interview. The comic, performing in Philly tonight, talks about acting and the one sketch that got on "SNL."

Hannibal Buress takes issue with the idea that his rise to fame has been quick. "I don't think it's been that quick. I've been doing stand-up almost 13 years," he points out. He's had three albums and two specials, including last March's "Live from Chicago." But it is true that Buress is more recognizable now than he once was. In 2009, he got a gig on the "Saturday Night Live" writing staff. In about six months he only saw one sketch air. He's since crossed over to the other side of the screen, appearing on "Broad City" and in a small, funny role in "Neighbors."

What was the sketch that got on 'SNL'?
I should just make up a sketch. Did you ever hear of "D— in a Box"? You ever hear of a sketch called "What's Up with That"?

What was it really?
It was called "Barkley Golf." I'm going to start lying to journalists, not to mess up the Internet, but just to get different stuff out there for fun.

Sometimes you talk about real people, like running into Scarlett Johansson or complaining about an ex-girlfriend. Do you ever get blowback?
No. What I say about people in stand-up is usually not mean-spirited — except with an old ex-girlfriend. Only thing with her is she's untraceable on the Internet. I Googled her — she has no Facebook, no Twitter, no LinkedIn, nothing. I can't find her to tell her how good I'm doing. Good for her, I guess. In this day and age, people who are not on the Internet at all, I'm like, "That's amazing."

Some people today don't even have email.
You can still do it. They're probably living rich lives

Real talk

Do you see yourself doing something more serious, the way Patton Oswalt has done films such as 'Big Fan' and 'Young Adult'?
Maybe eventually. That would be further down the line. I've gotten auditions for that kind of stuff. It will be good material, but if it's not funny, I'm like, "Man, where are the jokes?" I want to have fun, and doing something just because it's a good, serious project — that's not enough for me at this point. If I'm not enjoying saying this stuff at home over and over, then I'm definitely not going to enjoy saying this stuff on set. Even doing comedy can get a little rough — just the repetition. I can get through it because they're jokes and it's people having fun. I don't know if I could be on "NCIS." I know it's a job and you get paid, but I don't know if I could keep doing something that's not funny over and over and over. If it's just something like, "She's dead. She looks like she's been stabbed six times." And then saying that 25 times? F—, I don't want to do that s—.

and don't waste their time with stuff. They probably have long conversations and long attention spans.

You've been doing more and more acting.
I haven't shown incredible range on screen. [Laughs] A lot of my roles have been playing different versions of myself. I should stop saying I'm not good at it in the press because that's going to get me less roles, right? They'll say, "He's playing the same thing? We shouldn't cast him." Let's retake that: Man, I'm a great actor, and I can play lots of roles. That's the quote.

News in brief

From 'Heaven' to hell

This instance of art-imitating-life is probably not the kind of attention the filmmakers were hoping for: It turns out embattled former "7th Heaven" star Stephen Collins' most recent role was in "Penance," a short film just hitting the festival circuit, where he plays a pedophile priest. The film screened at the Catalina Film Festival near L.A. last month, just days before the release of a tape of Collins confessing to past incidents of molesting multiple young girls.

Q&A KIRSTEN DUNST MORE ROLES FOR WOMEN

The "Two Faces of January" star talks comedy and the pestering paparazzi.

Kirsten Dunst's latest is the '60s thriller "The Two Faces of January," in theaters now. / ANDREW LINNETT

There are only three main characters in the new thriller "The Two Faces of January," and Kirsten Dunst plays the only woman. But at least that's better than no women.

"I know when I watch movies and it's only about boys, and there's no interesting female characters, I don't end up liking it much," Dunst confesses at a recent press meet for "January." In fact, the film, based on Patricia Highsmith's 1964 novel, could have wound up being one of those; on the page, her character is a boring blank.

"I wanted Colette to be as much of a character as I could," Dunst says.

In the future, Dunst would prefer to do more female-heavy films, and even comedies, for which she isn't always known, despite starring in the likes of "Dick," "Bring It On" and "Bachelorette."

"I love comedies, and I don't think there are enough good female ones," she says. "I love working with women, and you don't even get to do that very often. That's why I did 'Bachelorette' — I wanted to have fun with girls my age."

Snip-snap

Dunst on the media

Dunst was a victim of the recent nude photo leaks. But she's always a target for parapazzi. "I live in the Valley in Los Angeles, which is as low-key as you can get for living in LA," she explains. "There's this one gym, and a lot of girls go there, a lot of models. That's the one spot they sit at in the Valley. And every day they just get you coming out, sweaty. But it never gets old. I'm like, 'How do they keep selling this dumb picture of me in workout gear?' I don't look any different. I wear the same thing, pretty much."

The look

Caroline de Maigret: 'Anyone can be Parisian'

Interview. The model's new book unravels the "je ne sais quoi" behind French style.

"People praise the effortlessness of French women, but they don't realize that it's actually an effort to look effortless," says Caroline de Maigret, glancing down at her black sweater, skinny Lee jeans and Stan Smith sneakers. Born an aristocrat, the 39-year-old has never exactly slummed it. Her new book, "How to Be Parisian Wherever You Are: Love, Style, and Bad Habits" — co-written by journalist Audrey Diwan, writer Anne Berest and movie producer Sophie Bas — could have read as an ode to the privileged, but the style tome steers clear of preachiness, instead debunking myths in an ironic look at the lives of French women.

How did you come up with this book?
Every time I travel abroad, I'm asked about "La Parisienne." I realized that there were a lot of cliches around the Parisian lady, who has kind of been crowned the "ideal woman." It's strange for me because "La Parisienne" is actually a lady who doesn't try to reach perfection but learns how to deal with who she is and how to play with her flaws instead of fighting them. So with my three friends, we decided to show that these women were everything but perfect.

Quoted
"They aren't really my thing, but I do like clutch bags — they're chic for nighttime. But during the day, I just use my pockets as a bag. I'm not crazy about jewelry, although I do have a few pairs of dangling earrings for when I want to be sexy. And I love a man's Rolex."
"Anyone in the world can be Parisian — it's all about the attitude," says Maigret. / PROVIDED

Who do you think is the chicest Parisian woman?
Charlotte Rampling is incredibly chic. She is feminine with an androgynous edge and, most importantly, she is a bright woman. She might be British, but she is one of the most Parisian people ever — just like Jane Birkin or Romy Schneider, who were born abroad but epitomize Parisian style, which is precisely why we made this book. Anyone in the world can be Parisian; it's all about the attitude.

Who is the chicest man?
I always say Keith Richards, but my man [French musician] Yarol Poupaud is probably the most stylish man I know. I steal all his clothes — he is the one who taught me to have fun with my style.

Inspirations

Who is your favorite fashion designer?
Karl Lagerfeld. He is always ahead of his time: He knows everything about fashion, literature and the arts in general. I think that fashion is linked to society, even if for me it's just a way to have fun, and he knows exactly how to transfer society to fashion, without ever forgetting to add in some humor.

A dating guide for the socially anxious

Practice makes perfect when it comes to dating. / COLOURBOX

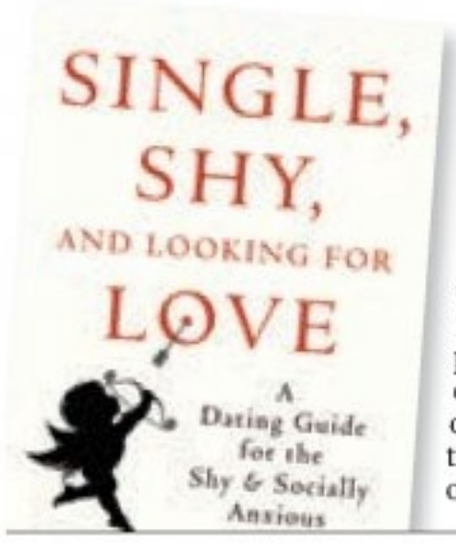
Tips. Looking for love doesn't have to be so hard.

Dating can be a nerve-wracking experience for even the most confident person out there. For anxious singles, navigating the world of coffee dates, online profiles and bars can be paralyzing.

Dr. Shannon Kolakowski, a psychologist and the author of the new book "Single, Shy, and Looking for Love: A Dating Guide for the Shy & Socially Anxious," insists that the search for a partner doesn't have to break your heart or your spirit. "I am sort of a hopeless romantic," she says. "I want people to be happy and to be in a relationship if they want to be." We asked her for her tips for anxious daters.

Accept yourself

A lack of self-confidence and self-acceptance are two of the biggest problems anxious people face, says Kolakowski. "You can learn how to accept your anxiety," says Kolakowski. "People think that if there is anxiety, that means I can't date. My anxiety doesn't have to define me."



Don't take all the blame

One of the worst things an anxious person can do while dating is assume all of the blame when things don't work out. "Remember that dating is 50-50," says Kolakowski. "It's not all on your shoulders." Obviously, your dating partner plays a big part in how things ultimately turn out. "Dating doesn't always work out, and that's OK," she reminds readers.

You can do it

Anxious people tend to endlessly ruminate on mistakes. In those cases, Kolakowski urges clients to take a step back. "Why are they telling themselves this story?" she asks. "Because these are all stories. ... You can say, 'My story can include love again.'"

LAKSHMI GANDHI
@LakshmiGandhi
lakshmi.gandhi@metro.us

One more tip

Define your ultimate goals

"What is it that you want from your life?" asks Kolakowski. "How can we reprioritize to get what you want? Are you valuing your anxiety over a potential relationship?"

If you feel like you are letting your anxiety run your life, working on relaxation techniques and tracking your emotions can help you separate your social anxiety from the reality of the situation. When it comes to relationships, "it is only going to get easier with time," she says.

Singles. There really is a dating site out there for everyone

You can be as happy as this couple one day. / COLOURBOX

The names of dating sites such as Match, OKCupid and Plenty of Fish are instantly recognizable to both daters and nondaters alike. But what about those singles who are looking for an online community that's a bit more select? Here are three unusual ones we found.

Geek2Geek

This site bills itself as a "safe, friendly and easy-to-use site where geeks and their admirers can find each other."

Farmers Only

Nine years ago, public relations executive Jerry Miller began Farmers Only — a site whose goal is to help "farmers and ranchers to meet like-minded people." On the site's official blog, Miller says that he came up with the idea after meeting a recently divorced farmer who was talking with him about her struggles to find a compatible date. Interested? Take note that users (naturally) are almost all from the rural United States and Canada.

No Longer Lonely

Everyone on this site has received a diagnosis of some form of mental illness. No Longer Lonely is a place daters don't have to worry about stigma or stereotypes. LAKSHMI GANDHI

Moving up the ranks

Empire. The head chef at Kevin Sbraga's soon to open Juniper Commons met the "Top Chef" through Craigslist.

Born and raised in Philadelphia, Greg Garbacz started as a sous chef in "Top Chef" winner Kevin Sbraga's namesake resto on Broad Street. Garbacz has since moved up to executive chef and will carry that title with him when he makes the move from Sbraga's first Philly joint to his third. The upcoming Juniper Commons — an '80s-themed restaurant, of all things — is shooting for a late November opening.

You've been with Kevin Sbraga since 2011. How did you get started with him?
Through Craigslist, actually. He had an ad on there for a sous chef, and two months before Sbraga opened I got the job.

How does it feel to be involved with his progression in Philadelphia?
It feels great. Maybe I'm a little biased, but I think it's one of the top restaurant groups in the city. We're up there with [Stephen] Starr and [Jose] Garces. It feels good to be a part of a group that's well respected, not just in the city, but nationally.

Can you tell us about the upcoming Juniper Commons?
The theme is circa 1980. We're going to have ashtrays on the table. I mean, you can't smoke in there, of course — it's for the ambiance. We found some great Food and Wine and Gourmet magazines from the '80s to put out. The menu is retro with a modern twist. The food will be rotisserie and raw bar. We're installing an awesome grill, too, with a wood fire.

So you were very much involved with the menu-making process? What was that like?
Over the summer Kevin and I went to the West Coast — places like Seattle and Portland. Then to Austin to check out grilling. We were together for over a week and we wrote out the entire menu during that trip.

Bonus question

Are there a lot of unexpected challenges opening another restaurant?
This one is a huge challenge for me because I'm going into it as the executive chef.

I helped open Sbraga, but [Chef Sbraga] had someone then who was doing what I'm doing now. It's a new challenge, but it's exactly what I wanted to do.

Food

Fall into a seasonal salad

Calling Sweetgreen a salad chain undersells the variety and creativity of what they put over their roughage.

The first rule of Sweetgreen: There's practically nothing that can't go in a salad — as long as it's in season.

The new fall menu recently arrived at its 27 locations (including two in Philly and one in Ardmore), with three seasonal salads; grain bowls that incorporate quinoa, farro and wild rice; and soups.

The ingredients remain driven by the quick-service restaurant's organic and local ethos.

We rounded up our Sweetgreen favorites from a recent tasting dinner. EVA KIS

Apples, Pears + Organic Cheddar Salad

Pumpkins may be the flavor in everyone's coffee, but fall's table belongs to the apple, with mesclun, kale, basil, candied pecans and balsamic vinaigrette.

Curry Cauliflower + Quinoa Bowl

Keep your energy up with this protein-packed salad made with farro, quinoa, arugula, roasted cauliflower, cilantro, dried cranberries, roasted chicken, Sriracha and cucumber tahini yogurt.

Wild Child

This worthy replacement for Misoba has wild rice, baby spinach, cilantro, peppers, raw beets, shredded cabbage, carrots, raw seeds and avocado with a miso sesame ginger dressing.

5601 Greene St., Germantown
Free, 917-957-4504
www.imperfectgallery.com
When you think ceramics, you probably think pottery (or Mudballs: see right), but for Doug Herren, the medium has infinite possibilities. Many of his ceramic sculptures look like whimsical machines, making you wonder what they're supposed to do or how they work — a reaction that suggests sly satire on our fascination with novel technology.

Bill T. Jones

Thursday, 7:30 p.m.
Free Library of Philadelphia
1901 Vine St.
$7-$15, 215-686-5322
www.freelibrary.org
Bill T. Jones, a living legend among modern dancers/choreographers, will discuss his book "Story/Time: The Life of an Idea." The book focuses on his process creating a dance set to music by John Cage, but touches on his whole career in the process — a career that's won him countless awards and has seen him working with some of the world's top performing arts companies.

THEATER

'Detroit'

Through Nov. 9
Suzanne Roberts Theatre
480 S. Broad St.
$52-$59, 215-985-0420
www.philadelphiatheatrecompany.org
No matter where you lived at the height of the Great Recession, as long as it wasn't Detroit, you knew things could be worse. This play takes us to that most beleaguered of metropolitan areas, where a drifting family moves into an abandoned home, leading to a candid exploration of the ruins of the suburban American dream.

$10, 21+; 877-987-6487
www.ticketfly.com
For good or ill, most bands tend to pick one sound and run with it, but Portland, Oregon's Wampire play in an unusually wide variety of styles, from blue-eyed soul ballads to edgy, aggressive post-punk scorchers to shimmering psychedelic excursions. The slightly eccentric vocals tie it all together, as well as the kaleidoscopic keyboard work.

$25-$35, 215-925-3453
www.theclaystudio.org
When we first saw the name of this event, we imagined a game of dodge ball in a gym filled with mud, but it's actually a dance-a-thon and costume party benefitting the Clay Studio's arts education programs — which sounds just as fun, and a lot less messy.

Horoscope

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. You won't need to look far for help. Your family will do everything possible to assist you. Take seriously the advice given to you.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. It is easy to get carried away when you go out shopping or spend time with someone who has more money than you.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. You shouldn't expect everyone to agree with your strong opinions. The qualities that outsiders find so attractive in you may not be so appealing.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Expect to encounter a troubling relationship issue. If you have been insensitive, it's best to do a little backtracking.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Protect your position and reputation. Think before you act, and keep your ideas to yourself for the time being.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. You will be pulled in several different directions. It's impossible to please everyone, so listen carefully to what others have to say and make the best choice.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. If you are feeling lazy, make an effort to get some physical exercise. If you invite friends, you will not find it so difficult.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. It's time to organize your paperwork and sort through any outstanding bills or legal documents. Keeping your papers in order will save you time.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Take a class or start a new hobby. Excessive spending will be your downfall, so look for hobbies that won't stretch your budget.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. You will feel dissatisfied, but you shouldn't take your bad mood out on family. Complaints will only serve to make matters worse.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Be careful not to overdo it. You may start out with a burst of energy, but if you take on too much, you are likely to burn out.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Today, it might seem as though everything is going wrong. Be patient. Don't get stressed out over matters you cannot change nor control. EUGENIA LAST

Obama has experts

Re: 'Uncertainty over Ebola' (Metro, Oct. 15) I guess that letter writer Sal Giarranti has graduated from medical school and has knowledge allowing him to challenge President Obama and Gov. Deval Patrick on their claims about Ebola's transmission. I would remind him that the president and governors have advisers and staff members with expertise in several topics, including medicine, and their job is to provide the right information to their bosses.

Think of a better way

Re: 'Corporations are parasites' (Metro, Oct. 14) There's a line from "Monty Python": "I think we should put a tax on all foreigners living abroad." They were joking, but that's essentially what we do by trying to tax the foreign operations of corporations.
The impulse is understandable: Corporations should not be able to hide U.S. income by shifting the accounting overseas. But taxing a company based on the location of its nominal headquarters can't work. We would be better off with other options, such as a wealth tax.

NBA SEASON GIVES FANTASY FRESH START

During September and October, everything in the fantasy world that's not NFL gets swept under the rug. But yes, I can confirm there is life outside fantasy football. For the hoops heads out there, it's already crunch time. The season tips off in less than two weeks, meaning we need some sleepers and we need them now. Here are the top guys to steal late in drafts:

Smart Alec

Now in his fourth NBA season, the Jazz have finally handed slashing combo guard Alec Burks a no-doubt starting job. He's earned it. Last year, Burks' per-36 minute averages were 17.9 points, 4.2 rebounds, 3.5 assists, 1.1 steals and 0.8 3-pointers per game. He's going to push for 32 to 34 minutes a night this year as part of a three-guard rotation with Trey Burke and rookie Dante Exum.

This could be the year Jared Sullinger breaks out. / GETTY IMAGES

Getting Sullied

A crowded Celtics frontcourt is beginning to thin out. Jared Sullinger and Kelly Olynyk are penciled in as the starters, with only Brandon Bass and Vitor Faverani behind them. Sully is tearing through the preseason this year, one year after averaging 13.9 points, 9.0 rebounds, 0.8 blocks and 0.8 3s as a starter. Sullinger has the look of a poor man's Paul Millsap.

NFL matchups

Fire up these borderline players in Week 7:

- Andre Williams at Cowboys — Look for the Giants to bounce back from their humiliation and get a lead, meaning 20-plus carries for Williams (as long as Rashad Jennings is out).
- Kirk Cousins vs. Titans — Turnovers are a killer in real life, but Cousins continues to put up monster numbers. Titans' schedule-adjusted pass defense is bad without Bernard Pollard.
- Reggie Bush vs. Saints — Bush sat out last week as a precaution. Detroit will feed him against his old team.

Last place again

No love for Sixers

It comes as little surprise ESPN and Grantland picked the 76ers to finish last in the NBA in 2014-15. Their projection has the team winning just 17 games. Gambling site Bovada does have some good news, however, giving Nerlens Noel 1 1/2 odds of winning Rookie of the Year, the third-best odds in the NBA.

Last season for the Flyers, Steve Mason allowed 11 goals on 32 shootout attempts, which was a dismal .656 save percentage (46th in the NHL). / GETTY IMAGES

Flyers baffled by shootout futility

NHL. The Flyers continue to be exposed as one of the two worst shootout teams in the entire NHL.

When Tuesday's tie game between the Flyers and Ducks went to overtime, everyone in the building knew Philadelphia's only shot to win was a goal in the five-minute four-on-four overtime period. Even the Flyers' players and coaches themselves know they just can't win in a shootout. But why?

"I don't know," Flyers head coach Craig Berube said when asked why his team can't win a shootout. "Lots of teams aren't good at them, some teams are good at them."

Claude Giroux, the Flyers' captain, was the only member of the Orange and Black to net a shootout goal in the 4-3 loss to the Ducks. And though his majestic backhand flip kept the Flyers alive, the loss in the extra frame provided the 0-2-2 Flyers just one point.

"They're big points," Giroux said. "Maybe they don't look like it right now, but the end of the season those two points are going to be crucial, probably. We just have to make sure next time we get it done."

The Flyers have no trouble scoring goals during regular play. In fact, they excel on the power play as one of the top special teams' clubs in the NHL. Last season the Flyers had seven men score 20 or more goals. There is no lack of skill on the roster. But why doesn't it translate to a shootout scenario?

"That's a good question. I have no idea," Jakub Voracek, whose attempt at the five-hole beneath Ducks' goalie Frederik Anderson was stopped in Tuesday's shootout.

Wayne Simmonds, who leads the Flyers with five goals in four games, says the team practices the shootout nearly every day in practice. But Voracek says it's not the same thing.

"In a game it's completely different," Voracek said. "You are under pressure. It's a different situation. Different goalies. I don't know. We are obviously losing a lot of points in those situations in shootouts. And we just have to hope that we are going to work, work, work on it and get it better."

The talent is there. Now the Flyers have to get it together and buck the trend.

Quoted

"Sometimes shootouts can get psychological. We know we have a ton of guys with skills on this team, but whatever the reason is we're just not scoring in the shootouts." Simmonds

Shooting the breeze

The Flyers are historically bad in shootouts.

- Philly has won just 27 shootouts in 10 seasons (since the format was adopted prior to 2005-06 season). Since then, they have the second-fewest shootout wins.
- The first year the shootout was implemented, the Flyers won four of 10. Last season they won three of 11. The team has never won more than four shootouts in a season, and won just one of seven in 2006-07.

Eagles must combat bye after biggest win of year

NFL. Following their 27-0 thumping of the Giants, the Eagles get 13 days of rest.

The Eagles are in the midst of their bye week. But after playing their best 60 minutes of football all season, is the timing off?

"It's a great position to be in," Nick Foles said, clearly OK with the Week 7 bye. "We still have a lot of season left to go and I still have a lot of things to improve on, which excites me. You all know how I am. It will be great to have the bye this week to get healthy, get some rest, recoup and get ready to go."

The ability to spend a week getting healthy is certainly a plus, but for a player like Lane Johnson, who spent the first four weeks serving a suspension, it might slow down a finally clicking offensive line.

"We have good momentum, but the thing is, a lot of times when you come off the bye you look rusty," Johnson said. "That will be the emphasis."

Including the preseason, the Eagles have played 10 games. With 10 remaining, it's pretty much the halfway point with Arizona next on the docket.

Historically, the Eagles have fared well after a bye week, though most of the success came during the old regime. Under Andy Reid's tenure, the Birds had 12 straight wins following a bye before they finally lost in Reid's last year.

The Eagles, now under Chip Kelly, expect to repeat their success from a year ago, when they had a Week 13 bye and defeated the Cardinals, 24-21.

Week 7 blues

NFL teams tend to do better the later their bye week.

- Over the last five seasons, Week 7 bye weeks have yielded the lowest win percentage, .400.
- Weeks 9, 12 and 13 boast the most wins.
- The NFL as whole has a .561 winning percentage following a bye.

Preseason update

Noel sits out at practice

Nerlens Noel had an impressive day against the Knicks on Tuesday, posting a double-double in a 76ers loss.

But a day later, the center sat out practice due to flue-like symptoms.

"They took my temperature before the game," Noel said. "It was 100 or low 100s. I can't remember what it was, but I felt all right. Last night it dawned on me and also this morning."

Noel played 33 minutes in the Knicks game and despite his illness Wednesday, he expects to play against the Celtics on Thursday.

"I don't think it will keep me out," he said. "It's gotten a little better since this morning. The trainers have given me medicine, so I am feeling better." METRO

Help us explore pathways to diabetes management

Do You Have Type 2 Diabetes and High Blood Pressure?

We are enrolling adult volunteers now

If you have type 2 diabetes and high blood pressure, and are between 18 and 74 years of age, find out if you qualify for a clinical research study of an investigational oral diabetes medication. The study will evaluate whether this medication may also lower blood pressure.

You may be eligible if:

- You are taking oral medication to treat your blood pressure, and your blood pressure is not at target levels

  AND

- You are taking oral medication to treat your type 2 diabetes, and your blood sugar is not at target levels

If eligible to participate, you will be seen by a study doctor and receive study-related testing and medication at no cost. If enrolled, you may be reimbursed for parking and travel expenses.
